Scottsboro: An American Tragedy

PRODUCED FOR PBS BY Daniel Anker and Barak Goodman
WRITTEN AND DIRECTED BY Barak Goodman

In 1931, two white women stepped from a box car in Paint Rock, Alabama to make a shocking accusation: they had been raped by nine black teenagers on the train. So began one of the most significant legal fights of the twentieth century. The trial of the nine falsely accused teens would draw North and South into their sharpest conflict since the Civil War, yield two momentous Supreme Court decisions and give birth to the Civil Rights Movement.

Discussion following the film will be led by James Earl Davis, Interim Dean of the School of Education at Temple University and expert on urban education.
